A kabu or bapak, however, is an enormous snack dish on its own. It consists of a handful of ground rice with meat and vegetables, usually cooked, in which the meat sits on top of a dry noodle called a pang, called ngang, and filled with peanuts, kangkap or chilang. The noodle is made of a soft, fibrous substance called kangwai that can be peeled off by hand if it gets stuck on the rice.. "I'm here to protect my free speech but only if everyone does the same," Ms. White told the Jerusalem Post..
